Innovative tools strengthen partnerships

Translation Memory- and glossary-sharing capabilities enhance client extranet

Waltham, MA, August 1, 2008 – ForeignExchange Translations has added a Translation Memory- and glossary-sharing page to its client portal. This new functionality allows ForeignExchange to centrally house and manage master translation memory and glossary databases.

Many clients are required procedurally to work with multiple translation providers. It is often difficult to maximize the benefits of legacy translation work from one vendor to another. ForeignExchange recognized the need for a platform for sharing these Translation Memories and glossaries across multiple suppliers and built the capability into its existing secure client portal. The results of this new capability translate into higher leverage and greater Translation Memory base for clients that can be used across suppliers and greater quality and consistency in translations and terminology.
