ForeignExchange Translations achieves PRO certification

Leading translation organization further validates ForeignExchange's quality

Waltham, MA, October 7, 2008 – ForeignExchange Translations, Inc. has become one of the world's first translation firms to gain PRO certification. Pro-Z, a leading translation professional organization assessed ForeignExchange based on three main requirement areas and found that the company is worthy of its PRO status. The three requirements are:

- Standards compliance and defined processes
- Business reliability
- Good citizenship

ForeignExchange's EN 15038-compliant, and ISO 9001-certified, processes along with customer and partner recommendations and performance contributed to the company's inclusion in the elite PRO classification.

According to Pro-Z, the purpose of PRO certification is "to identify qualified translation companies, and provide them with the option of networking and collaborating in an environment consisting entirely of screened professionals." The certification gives yet another validation of the focus on quality and customer service and assurance to clients that they've made the right choice in ForeignExchange Translations for their medical translations.
